

THE GLEICHEN CALL

VOLUME XXXVI NO. 35

GLEICHEN, ALBERTA, WEDNESDAY

NOVEMBER 17, 1943

SUBSCRIPTION $2.00 PER YEAR

Old Timers' Will Meet December 8

The date for the Annual Old Timers dance has been set for Friday evening, December 8th, in the usual place Gleichen Community Hall.

This year as it was last year, the dance is being sponsored by the Red Cross Society and all proceeds above actual expense will go to Red Cross work.

As usual for the 18th time Art Bremner and his orchestra will be on deck to supply the music. The real old timers will be happy to know that Art is on the job because they can "kick a much more wicked foot" with him leading the orchestra. Anyhow it would hardly be as old timers dance without Art and his merry makers on the platform.

There will be no banquet this time owing to the war time restrictions on grub, consequently the old timers will have to eat from their own chuck wagon at the home fire side before they leave to attend the event. At midnight there will be eats for all.

Items From The Battery

A smoke and competitive exercise are being held at the Gleichen Armory for all members of the 22nd Battery on Friday night. If the weather remains fine the boys from Haines, Bassano and Cluny will all be here.

There's a new service ribbon for volunteer members of the 3 services who have been in 18 months. It called the ribbon of the Canadian Volunteer Service Medal and will probably be ready around mid-December. The medal itself will not be struck until after the war.

Considerable training is being carried out of doors as the weather is unusually warm and fine.

It isn't some new kind of armed service that wears an army uniform with an R.C.A.P. arm band. National Defence Headquarters at Ottawa expect that army personnel who are to obtain their discharges to enlist as air crew with the Royal Canadian Air Force and when returning to this country will wear their khaki outfit with the arm band for identification purposes.

Men are turning out better as the season progresses, but there are some who are not appearing on parade as expected of them. They are missing a lot of interesting training.

Canada's warriors in the Mediterranean are getting entertainment between battles. That's the good word from the Directorate of Auxiliary Services, which looks after morale-boosting diversions for men. Typical of the improvising it takes to provide relaxation is the report of one supervisor who rounds up an Italian orchestra each night for payment of one pound cash, eight tins of bully/beer, one tin of biscuits and ten cigarettes. Old boots are the most valuable commodity in commercial exchange, it seems, and you can get a pretty fair bass for a pair of oxfords.

Bert Boos has written from an internment camp in Germany that he is alright. Everybody is glad to hear this.

So many parcels for Canadian army personnel Overseas are insecurely strapped that five soldiers at Base Post Office do nothing else but repair and readdress packages.

Several are being dropped out of the unit but an odd enthusiast is being recruited. The battery is still pretty well up to strength. The officer commanding doesn't think the nonattendance is very good publicity for the unit.

There's a new age limit for men enlisting in the Canadian Army. The order sets forth that those who volunteer for active service will be restricted to men who have attained 15th birthday, but not their 25th birthday and who measure up to a physical standard fit for fighting purposes. Previously the age limit was

There was an unusually large number of people in town Saturday afternoon and the different business places in town report having done a roaring business.

After a silence of nine months the Bassano Recorder came to the front last week with the news of what is going on in the eastern town. J. G. Platt is the new publisher.

The marvelous weather we have been having of late tickles everybody. All hope it holds out till the new year. The fine weather certainly means that a lot of coal is being saved these days.

Mrs. G. W. Hunter died suddenly at an early hour this morning. At this writing funeral arrangements had not been completed.

The council is calling a meeting of the members in the Community Hall on Wednesday evening November 24th beginning at 8 o'clock. The purpose of the meeting is to discuss some of the problems facing the community.

St. Andrew's W. A. held their meeting at the home of Mrs. T. H. Beach last week. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Hampton on Dec. 8th at 8 p.m.

"Spent, Sucker, Spent" ... is the title of a recent warning against inflation's dangers. In other words, we can spend ourselves into the worst kind of financial collection.

The annual collection for the Bible Society, by the Gleichen branch, will be carried out during the week of November 20th and 30th. There is a big demand for the scriptures for the armed forces. More Bibles are sold the world over than any other book. Financial help is urgently needed as when the collectors call be sure and help to the best of your ability.

More than 100 permanent bridges will be in service next year along the 1,600 mile Alaska highway, according to information received by the Alberta Motor Association. The highway, which at present is for military and not tourist purposes, has been practically completed. Contractors who carried out graveling operations in 1942 have finished or are winding up their contracts under the U.S. Public Roads Administration and the mainline is being taken over by crews operating under the direction of the U.S. Corps of Army Engineers. Next year 14 permanent bridges will be constructed as steel material arrived too late for work this season. This year 33 bridges of a permanent type have been constructed to replace temporary structures but river flood waters took out 19 in July and August. Wide interest in the future of the north country, particularly since the construction of the Alaska highway, has resulted in the provinces of Alberta and B.C., railway colonization officials and others undertaking jointly the publication of a booklet and map giving a wealth of information for future tourists and settlers.

The annual Legion dance held last

45 years. Exceptions are made for those who have the physical standard who have trade and technical qualifications and are physically able to carry out the special duties for which they enlist. In individual cases a recruit who has reached his 38th birthday but not his 45th but who is considered physically able to carry out the special duties because of which he enlisted may be accepted.

Among the new members of the unit is James Wright, assistant principal of the Gleichen school, himself went to school here and then was away for many years. Old timers are being taken in hand. Another new member is A. H. Langton, a recent arrival from Manitoba, a local representative of the Crown Timber Co.

The present strength of the Canadian army is more than 400,000 men.

Recent reorganization of the Canadian army means fewer and stronger units composed of more fit personnel.

Nearly 250 members of the Canadian Army have won decorations in operations since this war began.

Thursday evening - Remembrance Day - was attended by a large crowd and proved to be just as big a success as its predecessors.

Mrs. Palmer of the staff of Old Sue's school is going to meet her son who has been stationed at Sydney, Australia, in Vancouver shortly. He is on active service in the navy as a radio specialist and will be at the west coast on tour of duty. Mrs. Palmer has not seen him in many years. Assurance has been given that every effort is being made to increase the production of flannellette, especially as it is required for the use of infants and children. It was stated that the cotton administration of this being is hard at work on this problem and is already meeting with a considerable measure of success, justifying the hope that a material increase in supply will be available within a short space of time. Incidentally, it was pointed out that flannellette supply difficulties are due to a great increase in demand rather than to any curtailment of production. In 1939, 386,000,000 yards of flannellette were sold in Canada but last year it was necessary to make not less than 7,000,000 yards available to the trade in order to meet the demand.

The T.B. clinic from the Central Sanatorium, Bowden, has been X-raying Bluffhead, Ladak, at the Indian hospital this week. This is an annual event. The health of these Indians is steadily improving, as indicated in these clinics. This is particularly true among the children and young people. Very few of them suffer from tuberculosis. Many of them, however, may not be under the daily observation of a nurse. They get extra rest and rest and are frequently examined by a doctor. If T.B. develops they are immediately moved to hospital or sanatorium. Remarkable cures have already been effected.

Many complimentary references to the efficiency of local ration boards have been received from citizens of the United States who had occasion to make use of them during tourist season now ended. A good many of these visitors seem to have been particularly impressed with the ease with which their rationing requirements were met and by the minimum use of red tape in relation with the local ration boards. They compared their experiences in this connection not unfavorably with their dealings with their own rationing authorities and could not praise to highly the system which has been established by the ration administration for handling the rationing requirements of those visiting Canada, either as transient tourists or as summer residents.

No further truck models under a ton ton rating will be available for the balance of this year. H. M. McAlfee, Service Officer, Truck Control, W.P.T.B., has been advised by the Vehicle Controller. No further applications for these types of vehicles can be considered, and permits will not be issued for the coming year during the remainder of the present year.

WEDDING MARSH-HAYES

North Hill United church, Calgary, was the scene of a pretty wedding when Verona Marsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Hayes became the bride of Lieut. Paul R. Hayes, R.C.N.V.R., son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Marsh of Medicine Hat.

Her wedding the bride wore a gown of white sheer, fashioned with full length sleeves and a shirred bodice. Her veil was floor-length, and she carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses and lily of the valley. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Elmer Bollinger, as matron-of-honor, and Mr. Wallace Fox was the best man. A reception was held at the Empress grill. Receiving with the bride party were Mrs. R. B. Hayes, Mr. H. R. Hayes brother of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Marsh. For travelling to Banff Mrs. Marsh chose a dress of deep coral wool with chocolate brown accessories, topped by a mustache coat.

Mr. Marsh is a graduate of the Calgary General Hospital school of nursing and is a Lieutenant. He was awarded the University of Saskatchewan prior to his enlistment.

Canadian Pacific Women Fill Enlisted Men's Places

Involving such predominantly masculine strongholds as locomotive shops and maintenance of way gangs, women have been helping to take up part of the slack caused by the enlistment of 15,285 men in the active arm of the Canadian Pacific during the first of September this year there were 670 women employed by the Canadian Pacific in positions normally filled by men.

This layout shows some of the women at work. Giving the final touches to the top of a locomotive in the roundhouse at Sudbury, Ont., and not unusual now as demonstrated by the railroading Service of Sudbury in the picture where Fred Sauer, company foreman, sees how close he can come to his daughter, Lucille Sauer, an engine wiper, with a bit of grease.

Smiling Vivian Constant, at the phone and alighted against the engine crew, all board, it is called "boy" for 77 crews in the locomotive shops at North Bay, Ont., while Mary Lemieux, pictured chalking up directions as a checker, also works in North Bay where her father, Joe Lemieux, is a Canadian Pacific trainman.

Father-daughter combinations are not unusual now as demonstrated by the railroading Service of Sudbury in the picture where Fred Sauer, company foreman, sees how close he can come to his daughter, Lucille Sauer, an engine wiper, with a bit of grease. The list of women doing men's jobs shows there are 254 on steam lines and 171 in the West in medical and communications departments while the communications department is using 216 girls as telegraph messengers.

NOTICE OF MEETING

A MEETING OF THE ELECTORS OF THE TOWN OF GLEICHEN WILL BE HELD IN THE COMMUNITY HALL ON WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 24TH AT 8 O'CLOCK P.M. FOR THE DISCUSSION OF IMPORTANT TOWN AFFAIRS.

Patriotism and Prudence demand that you I SAVE NOW OR NEVER

Your savings are urgently needed by Canada now for the purchase of munitions and war supplies. You LEND that Canada may pull her full weight for Victory. That's PATRIOTISM. Emphasis is placed on combinations of pretty colors, tailored smartness and on unusual ways of turning the total losses in the wardrobe into active garments. Included in the kits are several styles of children's underwear cut down from daddy's undershirts. It's the first time in our country's drumming history that patterns have been available for children's underwear.

CHAPTER XI

FROM a dark side where they left the horses, Jonathan and Tucker approached the town house of Lord Farquhar on foot. Jonathan's plan was to gain entrance in some manner, find Anne and her maid, and place the trap promised to be difficult, since Farquhar was aware that Jonathan had attempted something of the sort. Every door and window would be secured and guarded by his lordship's servants, men who, Jonathan was sure, would be willing to kill a bread from the master.

Jonathan peered through a break in the shrubbery surrounding the Elizabethan structure. A corner of the building was a few yards away, so situated that Jonathan could see both the front and one side of the house. The veranda covering the entrance was deep with shadow, but along the side wall were a number of jutting windows, some with the candle-glow of lighted rooms. The windows were too high for Jonathan to peer within, but he was confident that Anne Jamieson and Lord Farquhar were in one of those rooms.

"We'll have to find a window we know to be unwatched," he muttered in Tucker's ear, and moved from the trellis to a rosebush closer to the rear of the house. From this position he could view the windows of that section of the house in which he believed the most likely looking window. The missile spat against the pane. For a moment the experiment brought no result. Then Tucker's hands touched Jonathan's arm in warning. He, too, had glimpsed the blacker shadow that was moving over the darkened window.

There was no window, as there was no door that Lord Farquhar's left unguarded. Confronted with this checkmate, Jonathan was silent and still even when the blurred outlines of the figure at the window had faded away.

Tucker shuffled closer. "There is only one way to get in here. There is a low-roofed porch at the back of the house. I could nudge my shoulders and crawl up on that porch top and go down one more chimney. The night is warm and the fire. There will be no lighted windows. Once inside the house I can take care of the pistol on the guard at a side door and admit you."

"If you think the thing can be done," Jonathan eyed the high-backed roof, "go ahead."

ON HANDS and knees they crept over the ground to the side porch.

the door, but before he could reach it, the first man was in the room.

"My lord," the servant began, then stopped at sight of the naked man, ready pistol. Jonathan kicked the door shut. "Take care of this fellow, Tucker," he said briefly, "and you'll have your reward between the trapped servant and the room's only exit."

It was too late now for Jonathan to turn, since one of the men had thrown the door unlocked by Tucker. The light house was full of sound that could still be heard through the closed door. Jonathan handed his pistol to the chimney sweep. "You have your blade in your hand, my lord. Will you fight me?"

"Why should I?" Farquhar had detected all the evidences of activity about the house. "I have only to wait, and my men will be in here to overpower you. Isn't that right, Davis?"

Davis, the servant, blinked. "I do not understand, my lord. I only came to tell you that at the front door, where I was on watch, is a gentleman who gave his name as Sir Maurice Blaine. He seems to think that Master Hale, whom you were expecting, is with you. The Earl of Chelsea is expected within at least a dozen other gentlemen."

JONATHAN turned to the girl, Anne, who gave his name as Maurice Blaine and Tucker. "You remain here a bit longer so neither Farquhar nor his servant can get away from the door when you leave the house. You must get away before Sir Maurice is admitted."

"But you—?" Anne's gray eyes searched his face. "No, I shall leave you—"

"Davis!" Farquhar shouted. "Ad—"

"Blaine and the others." With a swift movement he tried to circle Jonathan and drive Tucker away from the door with a slash of his sword. He had no time to do this, for he was already being pushed back by the rushing man and his servant. Jonathan swung his sword in midair. Farquhar retreated, disengaged the blade, then attacked with desperation. The sword, blurred into motion, was being swung in a wide path through the air. Only the movement of his antagonist's arm halted the swinging blade in midair. Farquhar retreated, disengaged the blade, then attacked with desperation. Keeps Him Warm

Full Flying Equipment For Rear Gunner Weighs 135 Pounds

A recent article in the London Daily Mail gives the reasons for many of the changes in fabrics used for women's clothing these days. The story, dealing with the clothing worn by "Tail-End Taffy", a rear gunner on operations, shows much of the silk and woolen material gone. The Air Ministry clothes the rear gunner in his transparent turtleneck his guns, in silk and leather and wool and the women of the nation willing to do less or without to see that he is kept warm while scanning the skies for Nazi planes twenty thousand feet above the earth. Up there, minus forty degrees is pretty cold.

Taffy's flying equipment, which weighs 135 pounds to his own 140 pounds, keeps him warm, all except his face, which cannot be covered. Three years ago Taffy rose to dawn to jump into trousers or singlet and hurry off to drive a cylinder engine at a South Wales aerodrome. He arrives back at dawn after "ops" and picks up at different garments. It takes him three quarters of an hour to dress.

You see, we have to take our time to get into our work clothes. These freezes on the skin with serious consequences, he explains.

So the crew dress carefully, in a cold place, just an hour before operations. For the same reason, they are driven instead of walking, to their aircraft.

His long pants and vest are of silk-lined wool, as soft and creamy as a baby's layette and three times more expensive. Over them he wears a white knitted polo sweater. His clothing also includes a stout leather Irwin suit, electrically heated and furnished from neck to ankles. Three pairs of gloves (white silk, grey wool and leather gauntlets), the rubbered silk Mae West, and jockey-like yellow silk cap and gloves to be worn if the gunner believes in the cold. Every item has some bearing on the shortages of civilian life. His great thick sea-socks turn down over his boots and under his feet. He wears a thinner pair. And there is a white silk scarf, which Taffy's gift bought in Cardiff and without which he has never flown.

Easy To Iron

COBBLER APPLIES
8 medium apple, tart and firm
8 whole cloves

1 1/2 cups brown sugar
Small stick cinnamon
1/2 to 1 cup Crown Brand Corn Syrup (exact amount depends upon sweetness of apples)

Wash and core apples; do not peel. Place in large, flat, greased baking dish and stack a wedge of each apple. Add water, cinnamon and corn syrup. Cover and cook in a slow oven (300 to 325 degrees F.) until apples are tender (45 to 50 minutes). Remove from pan and baste with the syrup. Serve warm or chilled plain or with cream. Serve 8.

LIKELY TO FORGET

"People have learned the valuable lesson that the particular tires, will last many times longer when driven at 35 miles an hour or less instead of at high speeds," says an editor. Of course, they have. But they're likely to forget it shortly after peace returns.

NO MORE "DOSING" MY CONSTIPATION - I'VE CORRECTED THE CAUSE!

"Regularly" is important any time. It's vitally important in these busy war days when all of us are working harder than ever. Don't you know how tired you get after a long day's work? By that common type of constipation due to lack of exercise in your diet and sedentary life, you can correct the trouble right at its source. Buy ALL-BRAN, a purgative that gives you the relief you need.

Buy KELLCOG'S ALL-BRAN...grain-based as a cereal or in hot, crisp muffins...it's not every day...drinks plenty of water...then see if you don't forget your diet and sedentary life. Buy ALL-BRAN, a purgative that gives you the relief you need.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

The Old Yukon Valley

The faithful in a British Columbia mountain community gather to worship in a church that was stolen? And that in another community they are called to worship by a bell stolen from the stolen church? Some rather unusual thievery is described in the latest "Did You Know That" Canadian Canon produced by Associated Screen Studios.

Recalls Gold Rush

New Sending Spies Up North Over

The R.C.A.P. pilot expelled a long breath and vowed: "Believe me, if I ever take a trip like this again I'll sure have my parachute hooked."

He wasn't in a sky-climbing aircraft, but seated solidly on the plush seat of a passenger coach of the White Pass and Yukon Railway as it crept along the dizzy cliffs of the White Pass behind this Alaskan scene.

Hundreds of feet below a foaming torrent was like a threat in the V of the valley. As far as the eye could peer upward were cloud-swathed peaks. And the three-foot gauge of the railway seemed to take up every inch of the ledge along which it wound.

Yet up this valley 45 years ago men toiled on foot and reached the fabled gold of the Yukon. The railway construction crew was not far behind, blasting much of the right-of-way out of solid rock. Now the United States army has taken it over, and sturdy little engines puff over the 111-mile line to Whitehorse.

Light and day with supplies for the Alaska Highway or the Northwest Staging air route. The White Pass and Yukon is one of the few railways that paid for itself as it was built. As it crept up the steep, rugged slopes, it paid of freight to whatever point happened to be the end of the line and paid gold-seekers the money for foot-sloping with backtracking loads.

From the train today one can see faint traces of the famous trail of 1898, looking more like a goat-track (for agule goats only) than a foot-path over which men clambered into the Yukon.

Thirty-five thousand men were employed in building the railroad, which cost $100,000 a foot in some sections. The labor turnover was high. In one day in 1899, 1,500 men were paid to quit. It was a gold stampede to Alkan. B.C.

The old landmarks are still there. The train still stops at Lake Bennett, where the gold-rushers came to build boats and rafts to carry them down the lake. It's a very important stop, for the railway carries no dinner and the station restaurant at Bennett is the traveler's only opportunity to break his fast on a 10 or 12-hour trip.

A former Toronto girl, Pearl Swartz, runs the restaurant with a crew of U.S. Army cooks, collecting $1 each from the passengers as they pile in to sit at long tables and eat a much-needed lunch.

Target Indicator

Allies Are Now Using A Super-Flare To Penetrate Mist

Allied fliers now are using a super-flare—called a "target indicator"—which can be set at night or day from the sub-stratosphere through almost total cloud.

The new device, particularly valuable in night fog, made possible the recovery of a Duesseledorfer Pathfinder plane, reaching the target at zero hour, light the area with flares whose colors are changed for each raid to prevent the Germans from faking them. Red and green was used over Duesseledor.

LABORATORY FOR RESEARCH NEEDED IN WESTERN CANADA

With both the war and the development of chemistry well advanced, apparently nothing has yet been done by the federal authorities to set up a research laboratory in Western Canada to discover new uses for western farm crops. It was indicated several years ago that the matter was being studied at Ottawa, but it is one of those projects which have gone indefinitely.

Chemistry has made great headway in the United States and many of the discoveries of American laboratories are available for Canadian study. The North-West Line Elevators association has been advocating for sometime that the federal government should set up a western division of the National Research Council equipped with an up-to-date laboratory and skilled technicians. The first move to attain that objective was the recent appointment of a special research committee to work with the National Research Council. This should be followed up by real action.

Dealing with this subject, the Weekly Market News of Winnipeg said the other day: "What is needed is not general recommendations but specific findings on problems confronting the west—not a complete laboratory. When the war has finished the need for finding new uses for western crops and for finding new sources of wealth in the west will become more urgent. Something more than a gesture is needed now."

"The appointment of the committee is an acknowledgment by the government that something must be done. On a matter so vital to the west any action should take the form of a real attack. Appointment of a committee, if it is left at that, is not likely to be considered by westerners as a real attack."—Calgary Herald.

not, according to a recent announcement. A lot of new money will have to turn to make apple pies.

The machinery rationing officials meeting in Regina recently were concerned about many farmers selling still usable tractors in the hope of getting new ones. While quotas have been increased there is just enough to meet needs of essentials. The nearest rationing officer should be written to for a permit before any sale or deal or new purchase is made. The sale of second-hand machines at enhanced prices to secure permits for new equipment is considered "an unfair practice," the Board holds.

Due to feed shortages in Canada and expected lower production in 1914, our new ban and ban agreement with the U. K. provides for delivery of not less than 600 million lbs. over a two year period, as compared to current agreement of 675 million lbs. in one year. The new price will be $25.50 a hundred weight, up 75 cents.

Savory Resistant Wheat
In a recent issue, we reported: "... it remains to combine savory resistance with the many other qualities we demand in hard red spring wheat. This is a most certain to be a more difficult task than was the defeat of stem rust." A few days later we learned, in conversation with Mr. L. B. Thomson, Superintendent, Dominion Experimental Station, Swift Current, that there was reason to expect the distribution of savory resistant varieties within a few years. So we wrote to Mr. A. W. Felt, by whom the breeding work has been done, asking for a summary of his experimental work. The following paragraphs are derived, chiefly, from the report kindly prepared by Mr. Felt.

Several years ago, Mr. H. J. Kewen obtained some bread wheats from New Zealand which had solid stems. These wheats, while resistant to savory, had poor baking quality, were susceptible to stem rust, leaf rust and striking smut, and chattered freely. They were crossed with Redwing, Thatcher, and others. In the hope of securing hybrids which would possess savory resistance plus the desirable characteristics of our rust resistant varieties. The second and third generation hybrid population contained several conceivable combinations of desirable and undesirable characteristics. They were exposed to stem rust, attacking smut, savory and drought at several stations in the prairie provinces. Data have also been assembled on yield, strength of straw, milling and baking, etc. The vast majority of hybrid strains fell by the wayside; but a few performed well enough to be considered for increase and distribution. Final judgment must await further tests.

July, a new high monthly record. C.A.S. air crew serving in other wars leave to Canada for completing tours of operations the same as if in the United Kingdom. The first Canadian Bible is now rolling off presses in Toronto; since 1804 printing rights have been strictly controlled, only four other firms in the British Empire having the authority to print Bibles. The National Film Board has a hundred travelling theatres which go from village to village and factory to factory at regular intervals. The rural audience for them is now 350,000 a month. In the future, a quarter of a million. Since 1940 Canada has launched more than 200 steel cargo ships, aside from warships and other war crafts. In a single country these 200 ships could carry the following mixed cargo: enough food to feed the entire population of Britain for one week, enough lumber to build 18,000 four-room cottages, 400 bombers and enough aluminium to build more than 12,000 fighter planes, steel for 7 battleships, enough bombs to drop on every German subject and motorized equipment to supply 300 infantry battalions.

Air craft workers in Canada have saved the nation over $200,000 cash in direct production costs by suggestions made since the first of the year and perhaps millions indirectly, according to the Aircraft Industry Relations Committee. One Canadian worker made a simple technical suggestion which saves 5,625 man hours on every one hundred aircraft.

Our Post Office has become big business—and how. A big increase is shown since the war started with gross revenues for 1943-44 being over $59,175,137. Take air-graphs overseas, more than 76,000 of them are flown weekly from Canada; an ordinary mail bag holds 2,400 ordinary letters but 408,000 air-graphs which ordinarily would require 213 mail bags and occupy 630 cubic feet of cargo space. Just imagine, our P.O. department in 1942 sent 20,115,390 letters overseas as against 5,815,640 in 1940.

Program, in which all sections of the trade co-operate, is underway whereby the Wartime Prices and Trade Board will assure Canadian consumers of a reasonable supply of fresh fruits and vegetables throughout the coming season. Supply, distribution and reasonable prices of fresh domestic and imported fresh fruits and vegetables will be regulated. Wartime Food Corporation, a crown company is reorganized to be in a position to cooperate with the trade in problems of supply, distribution and price of fresh fruits and vegetables, especially those imported. As a first step, order in council places such imports under import permit. Price stability has been assured by placing ceilings on potatoes, onions, turnips, cabbage, beans, peas, snap beans, carrots, squash, pumpkins, grapes, citrus fruits and lemons.
